

Character: St Elizabeth of Portugal (Liz)

Who you were: Before you were brought back to life, you lived a long full life in Portugal before dying in 1336. You were married off to the King of Portugal at age 12. You gave away lots of your possessions to the poor, and built a hospital for children. When your son was grown, he went to war against his father, but you rode your horse into the middle of the battle and found a way to bring peace to the armies. When your husband died, you went to live in a convent, which you had always wanted to do!

How you came back different: You are somehow able to speak present-day English and have a working knowledge of modern times. You have become agile and your ears have grown. You feel a lot of regret from your past life - the fact that you really just wanted to be in a convent, but were forced to be a wife and mother. So now, you live your life "in the now". You really hate traditional gender roles and the cisheteropatriarchy. It ruined your first life, and you're not about to be oppressed again. You challenge these outdated norms whenever you can!

Race/Class/Alignment: You are an elf thief. With regards to your general morals and attitude, you are Chaotic Neutral (CN), which means you are free from society's restrictions and do-gooder strict ethics.
